Speaking ahead of the Summit, the PSFU chief executive officer, Stephen Asiimwe, said the entry of DRC into the East African Community now provides the Uganda business community with an opportunity to trade in a market that has a population of more than 90 million people.

The Uganda business community, he said, was yet to take full advantage of the opportunities that arise out of DR Congo, noting that it is also important to engage in high levels of innovation and creativity to diversify exports beyond food commodities and informal cross border trade.

“We can maximise trade by developing deeper links between domestic producers and external markets such as DR Congo.

The country has a population of over 90 million people, which provides a big business opportunity,” said Asiimwe.

Uganda’s trade with DRC has been growing over the years, increasing by an average of 10% annually. During 2017, for instance, Uganda exported goods worth $188.98m to DRC while imports from DRC to Uganda stood at $156.5m. However, this has exponentially grown, with Uganda’s exports to DRC increasing to $338.56 Million in 2021.

“The DRC is one of Uganda’s biggest trading partners in East Africa, with Uganda exporting mainly cement, palm oil, beer, sugar, iron and steel, rice, iron and steel (scrap), cocoa beans and natural rubber,” said Francis Mwebesa, the Minister of Trade.

“Uganda and DRC have been working together to improve trade, through a number of initiatives that include a joint agreement, in which Uganda agreed to support construction of a 223 kilometer road project linking the two countries. The roads, among others are expected to boost cross
